

Dieter Wunderlich: When comes morphology in?

Certain types of morphology, e.g., those that are triggered by prosodic alternation, seem to be as old as the system of phonological features. I will argue for the co-evolution of phonological features and modulatoric morphology. Such a scenario would entail a new view of a-morphic morphology.