

---

Lernbarkeitstheorie

---

Mögliche Referatsthemen

Mögliche Referatsthemen

- Pullum & Scholz (2002), Legate & Yang (2002), Lasnik & Uriagereka (2002)
(Poverty-of-the-Stimulus-Argument)
- Manzini & Wexler (1987)
(Bindungstheorie und Lernbarkeit)
- Clark & Roberts (1993)
(Lernbarkeit und Sprachwandel)
- Tesar & Smolensky (1998), Tesar & Smolensky (2000)
(Lernbarkeit in der Optimalitätstheorie)
- Gibson & Wexler (1994)
(Parameter und Lernbarkeit)

Literatur

- Clark, Robin & Ian Roberts (1993): 'A computational model of language learnability and language change', Linguistic Inquiry 24, 299–345.
- Gibson, Edward & Kenneth Wexler (1994): 'Triggers', Linguistic Inquiry 25, 407–454.
- Lasnik, Howard & Juan Uriagereka (2002): 'On the Poverty of the Challenge', The Linguistic Review 19, 147–150.
- Legate, Julie Anne & Charles Yang (2002): 'Empirical Re-Assessment of Stimulus Poverty Arguments', The Linguistic Review 19, 151–162.
- Manzini, Rita & Kenneth Wexler (1987): 'Parameters, Binding Theory, and Learnability', Linguistic Inquiry 18, 413–444.
- Pullum, Geoffrey K. & Barbara C. Scholz (2002): 'Empirical assessment of stimulus poverty arguments', The Linguistic Review 19, 9–50.
- Tesar, Bruce & Paul Smolensky (1998): 'Learnability in Optimality Theory', Linguistic Inquiry 29, 229–268.
- Tesar, Bruce & Paul Smolensky (2000): Learnability in Optimality Theory. MIT Press, Cambridge, Massachusetts.