Infrastructure for visiting scholars at Leipzig University

This document explains formalities for visiting scholars who are not contractually employed at Leipzig University. If you have any questions about researchers joining Leipzig University with an employment contract, please refer to our guide to public sector employment in Germany, which is available in German and English.

- Visiting scholar agreement (Gastvereinbarung)
- Visiting scholar status (Wissenschaftliches Gastrecht)
- Right of residence for visiting scholars without an employment contract
- Leibniz Card

Visiting scholar agreement in accordance with the Leipzig University fee schedule (Gastvereinbarung)

Visiting scholar agreements can be concluded with visiting scholars who come to conduct research and teach at Leipzig University, and also in the case of visiting professorships. All expenses are summarised in the agreement, which is linked to the Leipzig University Fee Schedule.

A visiting scholar agreement can be concluded for a maximum duration of six months. If another visiting scholar agreement is planned, there must be a break of one month between the end of the first and the start of the second agreement.

- Visiting scholar agreements for stays of up to three months must be signed by the head of the respective institute. A visiting scholar agreement for stays of more than three months requires a signature from the Rector. Once prepared, this visiting scholar agreement must be submitted to Section 31 at the Department of Human Resources, which then forwards it to the Rector. A short-term visiting scholar agreement, which is signed by the head of the responsible institute, can be concluded for stays of up to 22 days and covers a daily allowance. Visiting scholar agreements should generally be submitted to the Department of Human Resources four weeks in advance to ensure that they are processed in good time.

If a scholar is planning on giving a lecture at Leipzig University, then it is possible to conclude a guest lecture agreement, although this cannot be combined with a visiting scholar agreement.

For further information, please contact the relevant staff in Section 31 (link accessible via the intranet) or the Section Head, Dr Alexander Ciesek (alexander.ciesek(at)zv.uni-leipzig.de; internal extension: 33003).
Visiting scholar status (wissenschaftliches Gastrecht)

If a new scholar signs an employment contract with Leipzig University, then it is not necessary to fill in the agreement on granting visiting scholar status, as the person has the status of an employee of Leipzig University.

If there is no employment contract with Leipzig University, then it is still possible to legally safeguard the person's status at the University by granting him or her visiting scholar status. More information about granting visiting scholar status is available in German and in English. The application (agreement on granting visiting scholar status) can be downloaded in German and English. To apply for visiting scholar status at Leipzig University, this form must be completed by the scholar and by the host institute. As soon as the host institute knows that the scholar will be coming, the scholar should sign the documents abroad and return them to the institute. After being signed by the dean of the respective faculty, the completed form must also be forwarded to the Department of Human Resources, which then passes it on to the Head of Administration and Finance. Please allow at least four weeks for the application to be processed. To ensure that the document is available when the scholar arrives, it is crucial that the agreement on granting visiting scholar status is submitted as early as possible. The visiting scholar must apply to the faculty (no forms required). He or she should specify the aim and purpose of the request for visiting scholar status, and the duration and details of any intended use of University facilities (there is a questionnaire for this, which is available in German and English). The host institute or the visiting scholar must submit two copies of the application (one with original signatures), together with the signed questionnaire, to the Department of Human Resources, which then forwards it to the Head of Administration and Finance.

International visiting scholars (non-EU, Japan, Israel, Korea, Switzerland, US, etc.; see list for exemption from visa for travel to the Federal Republic of Germany) require a residence permit in the form of a visa to travel to and reside in Germany. A copy of the visa certified by the dean or the assistant to the dean must be enclosed with the application on granting visiting scholar status. A residence permit is also required for stays of more than 90 days, if the visa has not been granted for the entire period of the stay.

The following must therefore be submitted, either in English or German:

- Agreement on granting visiting scholar status
- Questionnaire for granting visiting scholar status
- Where applicable, a copy of the visa or residence permit (see above)

The assistant to the dean is the faculty contact responsible for the proper handling of the administrative process for granting visiting scholar status. The Head of Administration and Finance also confirms the approval of visiting scholar status following approval by the Rectorate. The Department of Human Resources will write to the faculty/institute informing it of the decision.

Right of residence of visiting scholars without an employment contract

To apply for a research visa pursuant to Section 18 d of the German Residence Act, visiting scholars who intend to stay in Germany for longer than 90 days, or those who require a visa to enter the country, will need a hosting agreement, which is required by the Foreigners’ Authority. A Section 18 d research visa can be granted if a visiting scholar has a scholarship or other resources of his or her own equivalent to approximately €1600 per month (depending on rental and health insurance costs); see German right of residence for scholars from non-EU states. The hosting agreement should also be issued by the supervising professor and sent to the visiting scholar abroad, as the latter will often need the agreement in order to apply for a visa abroad.
Leibniz Card

The electronic, multifunctional Leibniz Card is a new personalised instrument for improving the infrastructure for foreign visiting scholars and new international staff at Leipzig University. It proves your affiliation to Leipzig University (identification function) and has the following features:

- access to the university refectories as a visiting scholar (guest prices*) or as a new international employee (staff prices*)
- user card for Leipzig University Library
- guest access for the University’s wireless internet network

* To pay the reduced staff price at Leipzig University refectories, the scholar must be employed by the Free State of Saxony or hold an international student card, for instance as a PhD student from a university other than Leipzig University.

Obtaining a Leibniz Card as a visiting scholar:

Visiting scholars must first enter their personal information in the International Centre’s MoveOn visiting scholar data base. They should then make an appointment with the Welcome Centre (Luise Hofmann; internal extension 32069/32039) in order to pick up their Leibniz Card from the Welcome Centre. It is important to upload or bring along proof of the visiting scholar’s affiliation to Leipzig University (hosting agreement, work contract or guest agreement).
