The Faculty of Veterinary Medicine seeks to fill the following professorship from 1 April 2021:

W3 Professorship in Physiology (Veterinary Medicine)

The job holder will represent the subject of physiology for veterinarians in teaching and research. The professorship will be expected to participate in the Faculty’s main research areas as well as Leipzig University’s Modern Diseases research profile area. We are looking for an outstanding personality with a competitive research record and a focus on subjects relevant for veterinary medicine. Applications should include evidence of experience in publishing in international peer-reviewed journals as well as in raising third-party funds.

The job holder’s rights and obligations are regulated by the Saxon Freedom of Higher Education Act (SächsHSFG) and the Saxon Service Regulations for Higher Education Institutions (DAVOHS). Applicants must meet the requirements of Section 58 SächsHSFG, and provide proof of veterinary approval and recognition as a specialist veterinarian (for applications from within Germany).

Leipzig University is committed to the equality of women and men. Severely disabled persons are encouraged to apply and will be given preference in the case of equal suitability.

Please send your application with the usual documents (including a detailed CV, a list of scientific work and academic teaching including any records of teaching evaluations, and a certified copy of the certificate of the highest academic degree acquired to date), preferably also in digital format as a single PDF document, to:
