The Faculty of Social Sciences and Philosophy seeks to fill the following professorship at the earliest opportunity:

W2 Heisenberg Professorship in Philosophy of the Social and Philosophy of Psychology

The successful candidate will investigate, both historically and systematically, foundations and forms of human sociality and conceptual foundations of psychology. She/he must have demonstrated her/his competence in the above fields by excellent publications, and also have extensive international experience and a good international network of contacts. Furthermore, the successful candidate should be interested in interdisciplinary cooperation in the context of the Faculty of Social Sciences and Philosophy as well as the Leipzig Center for Early Child Development (LFE) and be willing to contribute to projects within the context of the Research Forschungskolleg Analytic German Idealism (FAGI).

The appointment will be made under the Heisenberg Programme run by the German Research Foundation (DFG).
