

The Faculty of Economics and Management Science seeks to fill the following junior professorship, funded by the Tenure Track Programme of the German Federal Government and the Federal States, from 1 April 2022:

Junior Professorship in Nature's Values (W1 with tenure track leading to W2)

The new professor will represent the topic Nature's Values in research and teaching at the Faculty of Economics and Management Science. They will contribute to economic sustainability research, one research focus of the Faculty of Economics and Management Science, and to Leipzig University's Sustainable Global Change research field. This research field combines excellent economics, natural and life sciences to study questions of sustainability under climate change and biodiversity change. The new professorship in Nature's Values, together with three others in climate and biodiversity sciences, will significantly contribute to advancing this emerging field at Leipzig University.

The professorship's core research topics are the social and economic values of nature. The research quantifies values that humans attach to nature and its services and explores the actual and potential roles of these values in society and the economy.

We seek an excellent early career economist with methodical skills in quantitative empirical research on valuing nature. Research expertise, documented by international publications or highly promising working papers, is expected in one, or preferably more, of the following fields: (a) empirical research with methods of revealed or stated preferences, utilizing economic experiments and behavioural economics; (b) conceptual, theoretical or empirical research on normative and ethical foundations of valuing nature; (c) economic and integrated assessment modelling to translate data and normative concepts into proposals for social and economic decision-making, using approaches of a similar kind to Nordhaus' DICE model for climate change economics.

The candidate should be willing and able to cooperate on an interdisciplinary basis with the climate and biodiversity sciences in the Sustainable Global Change research field.

The professor will contribute to teaching on the Wirtschaftswissenschaften bachelor's programme, the Economics master's programme and the International Joint Master in Sustainable Development, preferably in English.

The tenure track professorship is considered a position for early career researchers. Therefore, the call is addressed to applicants who hold an excellent doctoral degree, attributed with magna cum laude or higher, in economics, have the potential to successfully publish research results in international journals, who seek further qualification and have not yet completed a habilitation. If applicants were employed as research associates or research assistants prior to or during the completion of their doctoral studies, the total period of employment and work on the doctoral thesis should not exceed six years (exceptions for child care times apply). Applicants should have changed universities after completing their doctorate or have been academically active outside Leipzig University for at least two years. They should have completed their doctorate no more than four years ago.

The junior professorship is initially limited to three years. It will be extendable by a further three years subject to successful intermediate evaluation according to the Regulations on the Interim Evaluation Procedure for Junior Professors at Leipzig University (ZEvaO). No later than five years after employment commences, a tenure evaluation will be conducted under the Regulations on the Constitution, Procedure and Evaluation of Tenure Track Professorships at Leipzig University (TTO). The evaluation procedure is based on a binding, mutual evaluation agreement concluded at the start of employment, which sets out the development goals and expectations with regard to the professor's individual performance in the categories of research, teaching, knowledge transfer as well as academic and non-university commitment. After successful tenure evaluation, appointment to a permanent W2 professorship pursuant to Section 59(2), Sentence 2, no 2 of the Saxon Freedom of Higher Education Act (SächsHSFG) will take place without re-advertising the vacancy.

The job holder's rights and obligations are regulated by Sect. 63, 64, 70 SächsHSFG and the Saxon Service Regulations for Higher Education Institutions (DAVOHS).

Leipzig University is committed to gender equality.

Severely disabled persons are encouraged to apply and will be given preference in the case of equal suitability.

Further inquiries on the professorship may be directed to Professor Martin Quaas (martin.quaas@idiv.de).

Applications including a cover letter (1–2 pages), a detailed CV, a list of scientific work and academic teaching to date including records of teaching evaluations if available, as well as a certified copy of the highest academic degree acquired should be sent, either by post or electronically as a single PDF file, to:

Purpose and legal basis of the processing of personal data:

Any data you provide us with in connection with your application will be processed only for the purposes of this selection process and, where appropriate, in preparation for your employment. The legal basis of the processing of your personal data for appointing civil servants/for employment-related purposes is Art. 6(1) Sentence 1(e) in conjunction with (3), Art. 88 GDPR in conjunction with Sect. 111(6) of the Saxon Civil Servants Act (SächsBVG) in conjunction with Sect. 4(1) Sentence 1 of the Saxon Data Protection Act (SächsDSG), and Sect. 26 of the German Federal Data Protection Act (BDSG). Insofar as you provide special categories of personal data during the application procedure within the meaning of Art. 9(1) GDPR (e.g. data concerning health, such as severely disabled status), that data will be processed so that you can exercise your rights in the field of employment and social security and social protection law and so that the controller can carry out its obligations in this regard under employment and social welfare law (Art. 9(2)(b) GDPR).

Disclosure to third parties:

Your application documents will be made available to the members of the appointment committee, which is composed of representatives of Leipzig University, the participating Equal Opportunity Commissioner, the Disability Officer if involved, the appointment officer, external assessors, the Rectorate, the Faculty Council, the Faculty and University administration and the Saxon State Ministry of Science and the Arts (SMWK).

Personal data storage period:

The duration of the storage of personal data is governed by Sect. 11(4) of the Saxon Data Protection Implementation Act (SächsDSDG). This stipulates that data collected prior to the commencement of a service or employment relationship must be erased without undue delay as soon as it is established that a service or employment relationship will not be established. This does not apply if there is reason to believe that the erasure would harm the legitimate interests of the data subject.

If your application is successful, your documents will be added to your personnel file.

Your rights:

You have the following rights vis-à-vis the controller with regard to your personal data:

- Right of access (Art. 15 GDPR)
- Right to rectification (Art. 16 GDPR)
- Right to erasure (Art. 17 GDPR)
- Right to restriction of processing (Art. 18 GDPR)
- Right to data portability (Art. 20 GDPR)
- Right to object to data processing, where the data is collected based on Article 6(1) Sentence 1(e) or (f) (Art. 21 GDPR)
- Right to lodge a complaint with the competent supervisory authority (Saxon Commissioner for Data Protection, Bernhard-von-Lindenau-Platz 5, 01067 Dresden) (Art. 77 GDPR).

Obligation to provide data:

The provision of personal data is necessary to ensure the legality of the planned selection process. Failure to include relevant personal data in the application documents may result in your application not being considered for the post. Leipzig University's legal requirements during the selection process result in particular from Art. 33(2) of the Basic Law (GG), the Constitution of the Free State of Saxony (SächsVerf), the General Act on Equal Treatment (AGG), the Saxon Freedom of Higher Education Act (SächsHSFG), and budgetary law.
